THE CROSS AND THE LYNCHING TREE
James H. Cone
“This book should be read by all contemporary theologians, ethicists, and those who dare to preach about the relation of the authentic gospel of Jesus Christ to racial concerns.”
—Journal of Religion
“No one has explored the spiritual world of African Americans with the depth or breadth of Cone. Here he turns his attention to two symbols that dominated not only the spiritual world but also the daily life of African Americans in the twentieth century. In their inextricable tie, he finds both the terror and hope that governed life under violent racism as well as potent symbols of the African–American past and present in the United States.”

A BLACK THEOLOGY OF LIBERATION
Fortieth Anniversary Edition
James H. Cone
With the publication of Black Theology & Black Power (1969) and A Black Theology of Liberation (1970), James Cone emerged as one of the most creative and provocative theological voices in North America. These books, which offered a searing indictment of white theology and society, introduced a radical reappraisal of the Christian message for our time. Here, combining the visions of Malcolm X and Martin Luther King, Jr., Cone radically reappraises Christianity from the perspective of the oppressed black community in North America. Forty years after its first publication, his work retains its original power, enhanced now by reflections on the evolution of his own thinking and of black theology and on the needs of the present moment.

MARTIN & MALCOLM & AMERICA
A Dream or a Nightmare
James H. Cone
This ground–breaking and highly acclaimed work examines the two most influential African-American leaders of the past century. While Martin Luther King, Jr., saw America as “essentially a dream . . . as yet unfulfilled,” Malcolm X viewed America as a living nightmare. James Cone cuts through superficial assessments of King and Malcolm as polar opposites to reveal two men whose visions were complementary and moving toward convergence.
“White as well as Black Americans are in the debt of James Cone, whose important book will revise and refocus the legacies of King and Malcolm X.”
—The New York Times Book Review

SAID I WASN’T GONNA TELL NOBODY
The Making of a Black Theologian
James H. Cone

James H. Cone is widely recognized as the founder of Black Liberation Theology—a synthesis of the Gospel message embodied by Martin Luther King, Jr., and the spirit of Black pride embodied by Malcolm X.

In this powerful and passionate memoir—his final work—Cone describes the obstacles he overcame to find his voice, to respond to the signs of the times, and to offer a voice for those—like the parents who raised him in Bearden, Arkansas in the era of lynching and Jim Crow—who had no voice. Recounting lessons learned both from critics and students, and the ongoing challenge of his models King, Malcolm X, and James Baldwin, he describes his efforts to use theology as a tool in the struggle against oppression and for a better world.

“The final masterpiece from the genius architect of Black Liberation theology and the greatest theologian of the twentieth century.”
— Anthony G. Reddie, editor
Black Theology: An International Journal

BLACK THEOLOGY AND BLACK POWER
50th Anniversary Edition
Introduction by Cornel West
James H. Cone

Here is the book that introduced the voice of the African American theologian who would shake the foundations of American theology. Relating the militant struggle for liberation with the gospel message of salvation, James Cone laid out the foundation for an interpretation of Christianity from the perspective of the oppressed that retains its urgency and challenge today.

From the Preface to the 1989 edition: “This book was my initial attempt to identify liberation as the heart of the Christian gospel and blackness as the primary mode of God’s presence. I wanted to speak on behalf of the voiceless black masses in the name of Jesus whose gospel I believed had been greatly distorted by the preaching and the theology of white churches.”

James H. Cone (1938-2018) was the Bill and Judith Moyers Distinguished Professor of Systematic Theology at Union Theological Seminary. This year he was elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.
KNOWING CHRIST CRUCIFIED
The Witness of African American Religious Experience
M. Shawn Copeland

Knowing Christ Crucified is a powerful reading of the Cross of Jesus, both as it is written in scripture and in the experience of the poor and oppressed—particularly in the history of black people in America, from the time of slavery up to the present.

Beginning with the “dark wisdom of the slaves,” Shawn Copeland shows how enslaved people found in the story of Jesus both an affirmation of their humanity and a repudiation of a system that held them in bondage. She goes on to explore some of the challenges to human living in a world shaped and directed by white supremacy. And finally, she presses the meaning of solidarity in the concrete circumstances of American life.

These challenging essays reflect her efforts to read the book of the cross, and to grapple with what it might mean “to take up the cross daily and follow Jesus” with those crucified in our time.

M. Shawn Copeland is a professor of theology at Boston College.

SEMMONS ON THE PARABLES
Howard Thurman
Edited and with an Introduction by David B. Gowler and Kipton E. Jensen

Howard Thurman (1899-1981) was one of the finest thinkers and most influential preachers of his era. His spiritual gifts, as well as his unique response to his troubled times, were as extraordinarily creative as they were vast and far-reaching. This book presents a collection of Thurman’s unpublished sermons on the parables of Jesus. Capturing the power of the parables to challenge, transform, and inspire us to act, Thurman’s reflections may arouse new readers to declare or reaffirm their commitment to the kingdom of God and the human community proclaimed by Jesus.

“Sermons on the Parables is a rare gem, a distillation of the creative and intimate connections between the parables of Jesus and the spirit of a master storyteller and spiritual virtuoso.”

—Walter Earl Fluker, Editor and Director

David B. Gowler is Pierce Chair of Religion at Oxford College, Emory University. Kipton E. Jensen is Associate Professor of Philosophy, Morehouse College.
Under the headings of History, Theology, and Practice, Peter Phan offers a sweeping review of what he terms Asian Christianities—a reflection of the multiplicity and diversity among cultures and traditions in Asia. He gives special attention to the project of inculturation and the vexed question of Christian identity: Are Asian Christians primarily Asian and secondarily Christian or vice versa? In the case of Catholicism, he looks at the reception of Vatican II and the challenge of a new “way of being church” in Asia and covers a range of topical issues from migration, to interreligious dialogue, popular devotion, and ecological responsibility.

“I have no hesitation in recommending Asian Christianities as indispensable reading for both scholars and students.”

Peter Feldmeier draws upon the writings of Christian figures like Meister Eckhart and St. John of the Cross to reflect upon Buddhist concepts and teachings like Buddha-Nature and the Zen Oxherding Pictures.

Feldmeier is well-versed in the metaphysical nuances of Buddhism and Christianity, but seeks in this volume to emphasize the spirituality of both faiths and to suggest how dialogue might change one’s way of thinking about one’s own faith, rather than simply revealing alignments between the two.

Peter Feldmeier is professor of Catholic Studies at the University of Toledo, Ohio.
A CHRISTOLOGY OF RELIGIONS
Gerald O’Collins, SJ

In his latest book, Gerald O’Collins adopts the person and saving work of Christ (Christology) as the master key for organizing themes commonly treated by theologies of religion. O’Collins seeks to break the current stalemate that widely affects the theology of religions, and breathe new life into thinking about the religious “others.”

“With his trademark mix of erudition, energy, and clarity, O’Collins makes a case both simple and profound: rather than yet another theology of religions, we need a Christology of religions that draws together the best contemporary thinking on Christ for the sake of reimagining what’s possible and fruitful in the Christian encounter with other faith traditions.”

—Francis X. Clooney, SJ, Harvard University

Gerald O’Collins, SJ, is currently a research fellow of the University of Divinity (Melbourne) and adjunct professor of the Australian Catholic University (Melbourne).

WORDS TO LIVE BY
Sacred Sources for Interreligious Engagement
Or N. Rose, Homayra Ziad, and Soren M. Hessler, eds.
Foreword by Francis X. Clooney, SJ

In Words to Live By religious scholars representing many faith traditions present a sacred text they have found transformative in their work as interreligious bridge-builders. Accompanying each text are reflections about its context, its message, and how it inspires or informs their own work in the field. Despite their diverse perspectives, the contributors all believe that such textual study plays an essential part in constructing a “new interreligious ethos.”

“This is a necessary text, a jewel of a book.”

—Eboo Patel
Founder and President, Interfaith Youth Core

Or N. Rose is the founding director of the Miller Center for Interreligious Learning & Leadership at Hebrew College in Newton Center, MA. Homayra Ziad is scholar of Islam at the Institute for Islamic, Christian, and Jewish Studies in Baltimore. Soren M. In this perceptive text, Stan Chu Ilo addresses three key questions facing modern Catholicism, especially in Africa: What is the ecclesiology of Pope Francis? How does this ecclesiology meet the challenges facing the universal church in the complex world of today? And how can one translate the practices of this new approach into a theological aesthetics to meet the challenges and opportunities of the African social context?

He shows how two key themes in Pope Francis—the church of the poor and the church of mercy—have deep roots in biblical, patristic and diverse ecclesial traditions. This book ultimately provides a road map and guide for the mission of God in history beyond the papacy of Pope Francis.

Stan Chu Ilo is a research professor and coordinator of the African Catholicism Project at the Center for World Catholicism and Intercultural Theology, DePaul University, Chicago.
This work offers an up-to-date and inspiring overview of the mission of the church, distilling the essentials of Scripture, the lessons of history, and church teaching since Vatican II. This edition has been thoroughly revised and expanded to reflect the vision of Pope Francis, especially in Evangelii Gaudium, which calls on the church to regard all its ministries and renewal efforts in light of the primary goal of mission.

“Presents in lucid language all that a Catholic should know about the mission of the Church. No one interested in missionary praxis and mission theology can afford to ignore this valuable volume abounding in precious insights.”

Since its inception in the mid-1970s, Latino/a theology has redefined notions of personhood and relationship, culture and interculturality, and notions of the divine itself. However, a coherent, systematic Catholic ecclesiology has yet to be elaborated from a Latino/a perspective.

This book undertakes that systematization in a multidisciplinary way, drawing upon Latin American and U.S. Hispanic literature as well as theological reflection, to devise an ecclesiology shaped by narrative. The author analyzes a variety of narratives—fiction, history, religious rituals, demographic studies—to find viable starting points for systematizing the “story” of the Church.

This rich collection of essays examines the role of Christian mission in intercultural settings, with contributions from many noted missiologists. A broad exploration of the challenge and promise of intercultural living, the book examines topics such as ecological concerns, gender justice, communication styles, and postmodern youth.

“Intercultural Living responds to a deeply felt need for faithful witness in the world church today. . . . It is essential reading for anyone wanting to be a true missionary disciple in a globalized world.”

Elizabeth McAnally strikes a remarkable balance in this academically rigorous, spiritually rich approach to the myriad global issues related to water. She draws from Christianity’s sacramental consciousness of baptism, loving service of the Yamuna River in Hinduism, and the compassionate wisdom of the bodhisattva to develop “an integral approach to water ethics.” Building on but distinct from the foundation laid by Christiana Zenner’s Just Water, this book is a welcome addition to the growing field of concern surrounding global water crises.

“Quite simply, this is one of the best water books there is. Zenner’s survey of critical aspects of the world’s water crises is handled with breadth and nuance, but what brings the sizzle is her infusion of deep ethical thinking to the issues of the day.”

—Aaron Wolf

VIRTUE AND THEOLOGICAL ETHICS
Toward a Renewed Ethical Method
Todd A. Salzman and Michael G. Lawler

Salzman and Lawler draw upon foundational insights from virtue and theological ethics to propose a Catholic ethical methodological schema for the twenty-first century. Discussing topics such as natural law, conscience, and human dignity, the authors show how their new method may be used to treat issues of human sexuality in light of Catholic social teaching.

“A clear synthesis of current ‘state-of-the-art’ thinking about the role of virtue theory and virtue epistemology within Christian ethics. . . . Provides a helpful theoretical context for understanding what is intellectually at stake in current debates over moral issues within the church.”

—Stephen J. Pope

Todd A. Salzman is professor of Catholic theology at Creighton University.

Michael G. Lawler is dean emeritus of Creighton University’s graduate school of arts and sciences and emeritus professor of Catholic theology at Creighton.

THE CATHOLIC ETHICIST IN THE LOCAL CHURCH
Catholic Theological Ethics in the World Church Series
Antonio Autiero and Laurenti Magesa, eds.

Contributors reflect on the role of Catholic ethicists in the context of their particular, local churches around the world and in light of the ecclesiological shifts following Vatican II. The text examines the connections between ecclesiology and moral theology and then treats the themes of the different forms of concrete life in the local communities: the role of the theological ethicist, his/her relationship with the community and the local authorities, and more. Contributors also consider the emergence of local conflicts, as well as strategies for their solutions.

Antonio Autiero is emeritus professor of moral theology at the University of Münster (Germany).

Laurenti Magesa teaches theology at Hekima University College, the Jesuit School of Theology, Tangaza University College, and the Maryknoll Institute of African Studies in Nairobi, Kenya.
Nonviolence in America is a comprehensive compilation of primary sources that document—in theory and practice—the history of nonviolence in the United States from colonial times to the present. This newly revised edition begins with writings by Quakers William Penn and John Woolman and ends with the recent campaign of “water protectors” at Standing Rock in North Dakota. Classic texts by Henry David Thoreau, William James, Martin Luther King, Jr., Barbara Deming, David Dellinger, and Dorothy Day complement first-person narratives from campaigns for peace, women’s suffrage, labor, Civil Rights, and other neglected struggles for peace and justice.

Staughton Lynd, is an historian, activist for civil war objectors rights and peace, and attorney. Alice Lynd is the author of We Won’t Go: Personal Accounts of War Objectors.

Recent years have seen the beginning of a quiet revolution in the Catholic church’s approach to issues of war and peace: a recovery of the centrality of the tradition of active nonviolence and a growing commitment to just, integral peace. Among the milestones was an historic conference hosted at the Vatican in 2016, with support from Pope Francis, which gathered 80 peacemakers from around the world.

Many of the papers prepared for that conference gathered here advance the conversation about the practice of nonviolence in a violent world, Jesus and nonviolence, traditional Catholic teaching on nonviolence, and reflections on the future of Catholic teaching. The book concludes with Pope Francis’s historic Message for World Peace Day in 2017.

THE COMPASSION CONNECTION
Recovering Our Original Oneness
Catherine T. Nerney

In this small but powerful volume, Catherine Nerney invites the local and universal Church to tear down walls of fear, certainty, and privilege, and to surrender to God’s compassionate heart as it beats in our broken world. Intended as a connected series of reflective writings that will impel action, this book will be a valuable resource for social activists, parish groups, and spiritual seekers looking for new ways to appreciate and deepen their faith.

“In a world where we are quick to define ‘otherness,’ Nerney shows us the road to ‘oneness.’ As she blends powerful narratives together with rich theological reflection, she helps us see ways that the invisible heart of God is being made more visible to the world.” —Daniel Groody, CSC

Catherine T. Nerney, SSJ is associate professor of religious studies at Chestnut Hill College in Philadelphia, PA.

AND GOD CREATED WHOLENESS
A Spirituality of Catholicity
Catholicity in an Evolving Universe Series
Edwin E. Olson
Foreword by Ilia Delio

Life’s dependence on quantum reality provides a powerful and practical metaphor and model of how our bodies, minds, and souls are connected to the deep interior source that can change our individual and collective lives. And God Created Wholeness integrates a scientific and mystical/spiritual way of looking at how life develops and thrives. By focusing on the relationship between quantum biology and spirituality, Olson finds a dynamic wholeness that unifies them, at least metaphorically, as our lives and understanding continue to unfold with surprise in this technological and spiritual age.

“This book is breath-taking in both the scope and clarity of its synthesis of leading edge spiritual and scientific literature.” —Bruce Sanguin

Edwin E. Olson teaches in the graduate school of the University of Maryland, University College, and is an instructor at the Chautauqua Institution.
LONELINESS
Insights for Healing in a Fragmented World
Gerald A. Arbuckle

This timely book of practical theology sheds new and welcome light into a dark corner of the individual and collective psyche and is a valuable resource for anyone seeking insight into the pervasive loneliness of our times.

Utilizing insights from anthropology, theology, psychology, and philosophy, this book explores the cultural causes of loneliness in both individuals and societies. Topics include the founding mythology of the United States, with its emphasis on individualism to the detriment of the common good, and poverty as a catalyst for loneliness.

“A helpful and steady guide in confusing times.”
—Robert J. Schreiter

GOD’S QUAD
Small Faith Communities on Campus and Beyond
Kevin Ahern and Christopher Derige Malano, eds.

Contributors offer case studies of best practices and practical tools for creating and maintaining Christian communities for young adults, both within and beyond academic settings. Reports from East Africa, Europe, and India complement U.S. case studies including the Christian Life Community Program at Boston College and the Catholic Relief Services Student Ambassador program. With an extensive list of additional resources, including a Small Groups Field Guide from the Catholic Campus Ministry Association, God’s Quad offers students, youth ministers, and campus organizers insights and inspiration in equal measure.

“If anyone thought that religion had no place on today’s campus, just read God’s Quad. You are in for a stimulating surprise!”
—Hosffman Ospino

RACIAL JUSTICE AND THE CATHOLIC CHURCH
Bryan N. Massingale

Racial Justice and the Catholic Church examines the presence of racism in America from its early history through the Civil Rights Movement and the election of Barack Obama. It also explores how Catholic social teaching has been used—and not used—to promote reconciliation and justice.

Massingale writes from an abiding conviction that the Catholic faith and the black experience make vital contributions in the continuing struggle against racial injustice that is the work of all people. His book is essential reading for all those concerned with justice and healing in our world.

Bryan N. Massingale is professor of theological and social ethics at Fordham University in New York.
ECOWOMANISM
African American Women and Earth-Honoring Faiths
Melanie L. Harris
Ecology & Justice Series

"Ecowomanism’s concern for the ‘tripartite oppressions’ of gender, race, and class subjugation reimagines environmental injustice as an obligation to ‘the least of these.’ . . . A book for everyone.”
—The Christian Century

“. . . offers a fresh perspective on the ways that white supremacist thinking has been embedded in environmental history and discourse, and argues convincingly for what can be done about this problem.”
—Reading Religion (AAR)

Melanie L. Harris is professor of religion and ethics at Texas Christian University.

THE SPIRITUALS AND THE BLUES
An Interpretation
James H. Cone

The best-selling masterpiece shows how two forms of song—the spirituals and the blues—helped sustain slaves and their children in the midst of “a powerful lot of tribulation.” Both musical forms undercut the dominant society, strengthening the black community in the face of oppression.

“A cogent analysis of the spirituals and the blues as African-American cultural expressions. . . . remains on the must-read shelf.”
—The Christian Century

GOD OF THE OPPRESSED
Revised Edition
James H. Cone

God of the Oppressed remains a landmark in the development of black theology—the first effort to present a systematic theology drawing fully on the resources of African American religion and culture. In his reflections on God, Jesus, suffering, and liberation, Cone relates the gospel message to the experience of the black community. Revised with a new introduction, Cone’s book remains invaluable for scholars, students, clergy and everyone concerned with vital, contemporary God-talk.

“Cone has opened the door to a universal theology.”
—The Christian Century

AFRICAN, CHRISTIAN, FEMINIST
The Enduring Search for What Matters
Teresia Mbari Hinga
For the past two decades, Teresia Hinga has been a leading academic voice in the fields of African Christianity, women in African theology, and gender and ethics in the African context. Now, African, Christian, Feminist brings together Hinga’s own selections from her extensive body of work, some previously unpublished. A valuable resource for scholars and students alike, this book reveals the depth and breadth of a unique voice in theology, ethics, and gender and African studies. Teresia Mbari Hinga is associate professor in the religious studies department at Santa Clara University.

THE JOURNEY OF RECONCILIATION
Groaning for a New Creation in Africa
Emmanuel Katongole
Beginning with a theological vision of reconciliation as God’s journey with creation, Emmanuel Katongole explores the ecclesiological dimension of reconciliation. He use stories of peace activists in Uganda, Congo, and Rwanda to illuminate the spiritual and practical disciplines that sustain those who labor for reconciliation. Emmanuel Katongole, a Ugandan priest and theologian, founded the Center for Reconciliation at Duke University and is now associate professor of theology and peace studies at Notre Dame.

THE FUTURE OF INTERRELIGIOUS DIALOGUE
A Multireligious Conversation on Nostra Aetate
Charles L. Cohen, Paul F. Knitter, and Ulrich Rosenhagen, eds.
Celebrating the 50th anniversary of the landmark Vatican II document, Nostra Aetate, multi-perspective essays by the world’s leading scholars of theology and interreligious dialogue bring new ferment to the field of interreligious understanding. Contributors include experts on Judaism, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, Protestantism, Orthodox Christianity, and Roman Catholicism.

MY NEIGHBOR’S FAITH
Stories of Interreligious Encounter, Growth, and Transformation
Jennifer Howe Peace, Or Rose and Gregory Mobley, eds.
Foreword by Joan Chittister

Inspiring and penetrating stories about the interreligious encounters of outstanding community leaders, scholars, public intellectuals, and activists who share their personal experience of “border-crossing,” and the unforgettable lessons learned from these encounters.

Jennifer Howe Peace is assistant professor of interfaith studies at Andover Newton Theological School. Rabbi Or Rose is founding director of the Miller Center for Interreligious Learning & Leadership at Hebrew College in Newton Center, MA. Gregory Mobley is professor of Christian Bible at Andover Newton Theological School.

POPE FRANCIS AND THE THEOLOGY OF THE PEOPLE
Rafael Luciani

Pope Francis has offered a bold challenge to an “economy that kills,” identifying in particular a form of globalization that turns people into disposable consumers and increases the widening gap between the rich and poor. He has drawn from both the social teaching of the Latin American Church and from a school of theology that arose in Argentina called “Theology of the People.” A type of liberation theology, it emphasizes respect for the culture and popular religious expressions of the poor.

“This is the best book I have seen so far on Francis: careful, balanced, and informative.”
—Harvey Cox, Harvard Divinity School

Rafael Luciani, a lay theologian from Caracas, Venezuela, is currently a visiting professor at Boston College.

A THEOLOGY OF LIBERATION
15th Anniversary Edition
Gustavo Gutiérrez

ONE OF CHURCH TIMES (UK) TOP 100 CHRISTIAN BOOKS OF ALL TIME.

ONE OF CHRISTIANITY TODAY’S 100 BOOKS OF THE CENTURY.

This work more than any other has formed and directed the worldwide discussion of liberation theology. What Time magazine has called a “seminal” work, A Theology of Liberation remains the single most lucid, direct, and powerful statement of the heart of liberation theology.

Gustavo Gutiérrez, theologian and Dominican priest, is currently the John Cardinal O’Hara Professor of Theology at the University of Notre Dame.
Andrew Walls examines the role of mission and cross-cultural transmission of the Gospel in the formation of World Christianity. In essays marked by profound learning and his characteristic wit, he covers themes ranging from the transmission of Christian faith, to Africa in Christian thought and history, along with reflections on many mission figures, and a personal reflection on “missiology as a vocation.”

“An essential guide to understanding the dynamics that are transforming World Christianity. One should not only read this book, but also devour it.”

Andrew F. Walls is Honorary Professor in the University of Edinburgh and Emeritus Professor, Akrofi-Christaller Institute, Akropong, Ghana.
TRANSFORMING MISSION
Paradigm Shifts in Theology of Mission

TRADITIONAL RITUAL AS CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
Dangerous Syncretism or Necessary Hybridity?
R. Daniel Shaw and William R. Burrows, eds.

Highlighting the voices of non-Western scholars, this collection recognizes the importance of ritual and ceremony in the life of communities that seek to worship God in ways that reflect culturally appropriate responses to Scripture. The contributors discuss rituals, beliefs, and practices of diverse peoples, all supporting the conclusion that orthodox Christianity is hybrid Christianity.

R. Daniel Shaw is professor of anthropology and translation at the Fuller Graduate School of World Mission/Intercultural Studies.

THE SIN OF WHITE SUPREMACY
Christianity, Racism, and Religious Diversity in America
Jeannine Hill Fletcher
Critically examines how the notion of Christian supremacy in the United States has led to white supremacy and how appropriate educational strategies can foster healing.
“The Sin of White Supremacy begins to unpack the theological history of racism in the United States in a way that is readily accessible. Importantly, this allows her work to be very useful for undergraduate- and graduate-level students who are exploring the very Christian beginnings of racism in the United States. Fletcher has done an excellent job of sourcing her argument and providing paths for further exploration of the subject matter.”

THE PROBLEM OF WEALTH
A Christian Response to a Culture of Affluence
Elizabeth L. Hinson-Hasty
Hinson-Hasty reframes the current discussion of poverty, wealth inequalities, and the exploitation of our natural environment from a progressive Christian perspective. She underscores the need for social change advocates to emerge out of every context and presents alternate visions for what it means to live by “an ethic of enough.”

“An indispensable resource to all scholars and a tool of resistance for practitioners working for economic justice.”
—Roderick R. Hewitt, University of KwaZulu-Natal

THE UNMOORED GOD
Believing in a Time of Dislocation
Paul G. Crowley, SJ

This short, profound reflection centers on the meaning of faith and the place of God in a time of “dislocation.” For all who struggle with belief in God in a time lacking familiar props or sure signposts, Crowley offers answers from his own heartfelt reflection and theological struggle.

“Crowley’s work is particularly important and necessary reading for anyone interested in the New Evangelization.... its themes should be incorporated into contemporary Christian discourse.”

—Catholic Books Review

Paul G. Crowley, SJ, is Jesuit Community Professor at Santa Clara University and editor-in-chief of Theological Studies.

THE IMAGE OF THE UNSEEN GOD
Catholicity, Science, and Our Evolving Understanding of God
Thomas E. Hosinski

Foreword by Ilia Delio

Catholicity in an Evolving Universe Series

Through the lens of “catholicity,” an awareness of our fundamental wholeness in God, Fr. Hosinski surveys our evolving understandings of God, casting light on our knowledge of the universe as revealed in physics, cosmology, and biology, particularly the theory of evolution. Here is a holistic understanding of God compatible with the implications of contemporary science that, remarkably, advances an understanding that is harmonious with the implications of Jesus’s life and teachings.

Thomas E. Hosinski, CSC, is professor emeritus of theology at the University of Portland, OR.

THE HOLY SPIRIT AND AN EVOLVING CHURCH
James A. Coriden

Exploring the role of the Holy Spirit in the evolutionary unfolding of the church throughout its history, Fr. Coriden skillfully articulates two principles: first, the Holy Spirit is the internal dynamic in the evolution of the church, the force that propels the Christian communities forward and in converging trajectories; and second, the reign of God, renamed here “God’s project for the world,” powerfully pulls the church’s evolution forward. He envisions changes, sometimes radical, in the church’s structure, teaching, ministry, and sacraments.

Fr. James A. Coriden is a canon lawyer and academic dean emeritus and professor at the Washington Theological Union.
CREATION AND THE CROSS
The Mercy of God for a Planet in Peril
Elizabeth A. Johnson

Confronting the woeful legacy of a centuries-old theology, Johnson shows how the beauty of our faith tradition is deepened by being rooted in ecological reality.

“Those who closely follow Johnson’s work will recognize that every paragraph in this dialogue is steeped not only in her extensive scholarship, but in the living faith that her writing always reflects and opens up to readers. Though the distressing, pressing issue of the text is our planet’s peril, Johnson gifts readers with a theology that both comforts and empowers for change.” —Reading Religion (AAR)

Elizabeth A. Johnson is Distinguished Professor of Theology Emerita at Fordham University.

INTRODUCING THEOLOGIES OF RELIGIONS
Paul F. Knitter

An accessible and comprehensive study of every major position taken by Christian churches on world religions and religious pluralism.

“This introduction crisply outlines the players and the issues in the theology of religions. It is a triumph of intellectual empathy: it treats the variety of Christian views of religious diversity with the courtesy and grace Knitter has done so much to foster in interfaith dialogue.” —S. Mark Heim

Andover Newton Seminary, Yale Divinity School

Paul F. Knitter is the Emeritus Paul Tillich Professor of Theology, World Religions, and Culture at Union Theological Seminary, New York.

I SEE SATAN FALL LIKE LIGHTNING
René Girard

René Girard holds up the gospels as a mirror to reflect our broken humanity and shows that they also reflect a new reality that can make us whole. Like Simone Weil, Girard looks at the Bible as a map of human behavior and sees Jesus Christ as the turning point leading to new life.

“A brilliantly accessible presentation of one of the most enlightening intellectual breakthroughs to come from the twentieth century. Girard enables us to talk for the first time about a ‘phenomenology of redemption.’” —Robert J. Daly, SJ, emeritus, Boston College

René Girard was a world-renowned scholar, historian, literary critic, and philosopher of social science, and the author of more than 30 books.
JESUS BEFORE CHRISTIANITY

25th Anniversary Edition

Albert Nolan

Nolan’s portrait of Jesus introduces us to the man as he was before he became enshrined in doctrine, dogma, and ritual, a man deeply involved with the real problems of his time. As Nolan states: “Nothing about Jesus will be presupposed or assumed. . . . My interest is in the man as he was before he became the object of Christian faith.”

“If you are going to read only one book on Jesus this year, this is the one.”

—America

Albert Nolan, a Dominican priest from South Africa, played a significant role in the church struggle against apartheid.

JESUS TODAY

A Spirituality of Radical Freedom

Albert Nolan

In this sequel to Jesus before Christianity, Nolan focuses on Jesus’s spirituality and its relevance for today. Addressing current issues (the hunger for spirituality, the crisis of individualism, ecological breakdown, the global divide between rich and poor, and a new understanding of our expanding universe), Nolan proceeds to describe the elements of Jesus’s way of healing and “radical freedom” that combine prophecy and mysticism, and applies that spirituality to our daily lives.

“What Albert Nolan did 30 years ago with Jesus’ passion for justice, he does again with Jesus’ spirituality. . . . A terrific sequel that will nourish spiritual life for years to come.”

—Elizabeth A. Johnson

A PALESTINIAN THEOLOGY OF LIBERATION

The Bible, Justice, and the Palestine–Israel Conflict

Naim Stifan Ateek

Foreword by Walter Brueggemann

A succinct primer on the theology of liberation in the context of the Palestinian struggle for freedom and self-determination. Ateek shows how Western Christian support for Israeli claims to the land rely on a particular, exclusivist reading of the Bible. In contrast, a Palestinian theology of liberation responds with a counter-strategy for biblical interpretation that emphasizes the prophetic themes of inclusivity and justice.

“A thoughtful and deeply Christian perspective from the ‘other’ narrative, one in this instance calling for justice and peace through nonviolent means for all of the inhabitants in the region, both Israelis and Palestinians.”—The Bible Today

Naim Stifan Ateek is an Anglican priest and founder of the Sabeel Ecumenical Liberation Theology Center in Jerusalem.
FAITH IN THE FACE OF EMPIRE
The Bible through Palestinian Eyes
Mitri Raheb
Through Palestinian eyes, a challenging view of how the reality of empire shapes the context of the biblical story and the ongoing experience of Middle East conflict.

“The significant strength of this volume lies in the incisive analysis with which Raheb assesses the role of the Middle East and in the clarity with which he frames a profoundly hope-filled theology that responds to the challenging circumstances faced by the current Palestinian people. . . . Here is contextual theology of the first order.”

—Interpretation: A Journal of Bible and Theology
Mitri Raheb is President of Dar al-Kalima University College in Bethlehem.

THE CROSS IN CONTEXTS
Suffering and Redemption in Palestine
Mitri Raheb and Suzanne Watts Henderson
In this unique work, the authors—a Palestinian theologian from Bethlehem and a New Testament scholar from the U.S.—explore the meaning of the cross in light of both first and twenty-first century Palestinian contexts. Together, their insights coalesce around themes that expose the divine power of the cross both for Jesus’s first followers and for contemporary readers alike.

“An impassioned and thoughtful reflection.... Gripping.”

—The Bible Today
Suzanne Watts Henderson is a professor of New Testament at Queens University of Charlotte, NC.

THE BIBLE AND CATHOLIC THEOLOGICAL ETHICS
Yiu Sing Lúcás Chan, James F. Keenan, Ronaldo Zacharias, eds.
Catholic Theological Ethics in the World Church Series
This first original collection of essays on Catholic Biblical Ethics in English brings together distinct voices from numerous cultures and language groups, and deepens contemporary understandings of the relationship between the Holy Bible and the world of Catholic ethical reflection.

“An admirable resource for any student or scholar looking for entry into the current types of research on biblical ethics emerging within the world church.” —Theological Studies
Yiu Sing Lúcás Chan, SJ, a member of the Marquette University Theology faculty, died in 2015. James F. Keenan, SJ is Canisius Professor and Director of the Jesuit Institute at Boston College. Ronaldo Zacharias is professor of moral theology at the Salesian University Center, São Paulo, Brazil.
JESUS AND HIS ENEMIES
Narrative Conflict in the Four Gospels

Robert R. Beck

The message expressed in each of the four gospels is conveyed not just through Jesus’s teachings or particular stories but through the overall narrative itself—particularly through the introduction and resolution of conflict. Through dramatic narrative the evangelists show Christians how to act in situations of conflict without abandoning the demands of love. This work offers a fresh contribution to biblical teaching on violence, ethics, and the Christian pursuit of peace.

“Viewing the gospels as varied ways of nonviolence but also as active response to conflict opens up a creative and interesting way of reading the four in today’s violent world.”

—The Bible Today

Robert R. Beck is professor emeritus of religious studies at Loras College in Dubuque, IA.

BINDING THE STRONG MAN
A Political Reading of Mark’s Story of Jesus

20th Anniversary Edition

Ched Myers

Since its original publication in 1988, Binding the Strong Man has been widely recognized as a landmark in contemporary biblical criticism. Applying a multidisciplinary approach, Myers integrates literary criticism, socio-historical exegesis, and political hermeneutics in his investigation of Mark as a “manifesto of radical discipleship.”

“A commentary that is potentially as revolutionary as the very gospel account it portrays.”

—Sojourners

Ched Myers is a writer, educator, and “theological animator.”

---

READING THE BIBLE FROM THE MARGINS

Miguel A. De La Torre

A basic guide to reading the Bible from the perspective of the poor, the oppressed, and victims of discrimination.

“This innovative resource is filled with considerable multicultural capital that can help many better understand the sad persistence of many ‘great divides’ in a nation that is so ready to proclaim to the world ‘United We Stand!’”

—Cain Hope Felder, Howard University School of Divinity

“This book provides many insightful cultural analyses and thought-provoking reflections that should stimulate considerable discussion in college classrooms.”

—Religious Studies Review

Miguel A. De La Torre is professor of social ethics and Latin/x studies at Iliff School of Theology in Denver, CO.
